

Jamie (Yi-Chieh) Cheng | jamiecheng0103@gmail.com | Portland, OR

A Solution-focused, Data-driven, and People-oriented Professional

Dedicated to Operational Excellence and Program Scale

May 27, 2026

Hiring Manager

Anthropic

San Francisco, CA / New York, NY

Program operations for a distributed workforce isn't glamorous work—it's the scaffolding that makes everything else possible: experts who get access on day one, tracking systems that don't drift, and someone reliable enough that research teams never have to wonder if the data is right. That operational backbone is exactly what I've been building for the past three years, and it's what draws me to this role on Anthropic's Human Data team.

At InGenius Prep, I managed operations for 20+ programs and 10+ vendors simultaneously—maintaining data accuracy across tracking systems, building onboarding documentation that cut ramp-up time by 75%, and serving as the primary point of contact for 600+ participants across live training sessions. The scale and distribution are different at Anthropic, but the operational DNA is the same: keep the access right, keep the data clean, keep the people informed and productive.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I directed a Mergers & Acquisitions project that required migrating and merging employee records across systems—the kind of cross-platform data integrity work that maps directly to access provisioning and tracking for a large specialist roster. I also streamlined onboarding across three global locations, which reinforced that the hardest part isn't building the workflow once—it's keeping it accurate as conditions evolve.

I'll be honest: the posting asks for 4+ years and I'm coming in at three. But the scope of what I've owned—vendor relationships, high-volume onboarding, distributed program tracking, weekly metrics for leadership—matches what this role requires. Anthropic's explicit visa sponsorship also makes this a role I can pursue with full commitment, and I'm genuinely excited to relocate to SF or NYC for it.

Sincerely,

Jamie (Yi-Chieh) Cheng