Dear Instacart Hiring Team,

HR partnering isn't just about handling people issues as they come up—from my experience, it's about using data and cross-functional collaboration to help managers and employees do their best work together. With a background spanning HRBP support, employee-relations work, and people analytics, I'm excited to bring that mix of analytical rigor and genuine care to Instacart as an Associate HR Business Partner.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I worked directly alongside the HRBP team, delivering strategic HR solutions across employee relations, headcount, and succession planning, and assisting on employee relations cases while ensuring compliance with local labor laws. I supported the design of an Inclusive Leadership workshop that grew from 12 senior leaders to 23 global locations. That role showed me how an HRBP earns trust—by being both a thoughtful partner to leaders and a fair advocate for employees.

At NextGen Healthcare, I analyzed 2,000+ employee experiences and turned them into reports that guided C-suite decisions, and delivered consultations on Diversity & Equity, inclusive leadership, and performance review. I love that Instacart frames its culture as "a seat at the table for everyone"—building inclusive, people-first practices is exactly the work I find most meaningful. At ODN Oregon, I sharpened my diagnostic instincts further, helping an HR team quantify $362K in leave costs to drive evidence-based policy change.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC), which trained me to treat people challenges as systems: I diagnose with data, partner cross-functionally on solutions, and track metrics to ensure real progress. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, Instacart's people-first, inclusive culture and the chance to support teams as an HRBP are both genuine draws. I'd love to bring this methodology to your People & Workplace team.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
