Dear Notion Hiring Team,

Being a People Partner to Engineering, Product, and Design isn't just about handling people issues one at a time—from my experience, it's about applying systems thinking: reading people data for hot spots, translating patterns and friction into better programs, and partnering with leaders on the strategy that retains top talent. With a background spanning HRBP support, organizational development, and program management, I'm excited to bring that analytical, all-altitudes approach to Notion as a People Partner for EPD.

At NextGen Healthcare, I shared proactive insights from people data, analyzing 2,000+ employee experiences to surface hot spots and guide C-suite retention decisions, and I led a manager-effectiveness initiative that coached leaders with reports that improved team performance. I also supported performance-review and calibration work—exactly the 360-style, manager-activation work this role calls for.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I delivered strategic HR solutions across employee relations, headcount, and succession planning, and directed a Mergers & Acquisitions project that supported org design and change management across global stakeholders. Coaching senior leaders through an Inclusive Leadership program scaled to 23 locations taught me how to build trust quickly and advise at altitude.

At InGenius Prep, I build deep partnerships with leaders across Product, Tech, and Sales, serving as a conduit between stakeholders and the team, and I apply systems thinking to turn friction into improvements—coaching managers through change and reducing onboarding time by 75%. I also use AI tools daily, including Notion, to work smarter.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC): I diagnose with data, collaborate cross-functionally on solutions, and track metrics to ensure real progress. I'll be direct—my hands-on years are earlier-career than the posting's range, but the systems-thinking, people-data, and leader-coaching muscles the role needs are exactly where I've spent my time. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, Notion's vision of humans and agents thinking together, and a People team building a generational company, are real draws. I'd love to partner with your EPD leaders.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
