Dear Ramp Hiring Team,

A great people event isn't just a party on the calendar—from my experience, it's a designed experience that reflects a company's culture, brings the community together, and gets measurably better each time through feedback and tighter systems. With a background spanning program management, recruiting events, and organizational development, I'm excited to bring that builder's instinct to Ramp as your Senior People Events & Culture Manager.

At InGenius Prep, I own end-to-end planning and logistics for 20+ programs and live events—managing vendors, scheduling, and run-of-show—and I build the scalable templates and systems that keep a busy programming calendar consistent and efficient. I facilitate events and webinars for 600+ participants, and I partner cross-functionally with Marketing, Tech, and Sales to define goals and measure whether an experience actually landed. I genuinely love the operational craft of making a large event feel effortless to everyone in the room.

Earlier, at Kronos Research, I owned recruiting events end-to-end, moderating C-suite panels at top universities that reached 230+ students and drove a 566% jump in applications through personalized candidate engagement. That's the recruiting-and-employer-brand side of this role—designing events that excite candidates, not just employees.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I strengthened culture through an HR newsletter and award-winning well-being initiatives recognized among 1,000+ competitors, and helped pilot a leadership program scaled to 23 locations. Building culture programs that travel and stick is work I find deeply energizing.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC): I diagnose with data, collaborate cross-functionally on solutions, and track metrics to ensure real progress. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, Ramp's high-agency, builder culture—and the chance to own internal and recruiting events from the ground up out of the NYC HQ—are exactly the kind of high-visibility challenge I want. I'd love to bring the energy to your People team.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
