Dear Writer Hiring Team,

A great workplace experience isn't just about keeping the snacks stocked—from my experience, it's about designing the daily details, events, and processes that make people feel taken care of so they can do their best work. With a background spanning program operations, events, and organizational development, I'm excited to bring that hospitality-driven, detail-obsessed approach to Writer's growing New York office.

At InGenius Prep, I organize and support internal and external events and meetings for 600+ participants, owning the end-to-end logistics and run-of-show, and I create the policies, SOPs, and documentation for 70+ staff that drive efficiency and a smoother experience. I coordinate vendors and partners across 20+ programs, and I'm the person who anticipates the small problems before they become big ones. I genuinely enjoy being the connective tissue that makes a place run well.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I optimized onboarding across 3 global locations and improved the workplace experience by streamlining relocation and immigration logistics with cross-functional teams. I also strengthened culture through an HR newsletter and award-winning well-being initiatives recognized among 1,000+ competitors—proof I can create programming that surprises and delights.

Earlier, at Kronos Research, I organized recruiting events and moderated executive panels at top universities, reaching 230+ students. Running events that feel polished and welcoming, even at scale, is work I find energizing.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC): I diagnose with data and feedback, collaborate cross-functionally on solutions, and track what's working to keep improving. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset who genuinely loves making people feel at home, Writer's mission to build a better future of work with AI—and the chance to own the daily experience for your NYC colleagues—are exactly the kind of high-touch, high-ownership role I want. I'd love to help your team thrive.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
