Dear Brex Hiring Team,

Strong enablement isn't just about scheduling a training—from my experience, it's about ramping people faster by building the logistics, the materials, and the feedback loops that actually get them productive, refined continuously through cross-functional collaboration. With a background in program management, onboarding, and training delivery, I'm excited to bring that systems-minded approach to Brex as a Sales Enablement Specialist.

At InGenius Prep, I am the operational backbone for 20+ programs: I manage end-to-end coordination and logistics across Marketing, Tech, and Sales teams, and I built the onboarding processes and documentation for 70+ staff that cut ramp time by 75%. I also facilitate training webinars for 600+ participants. One project is especially relevant—when I launched a new sales process and adoption lagged, I interviewed the reps, found the blocker was friction not resistance, and built a one-page enablement asset that lifted usage. That's the enablement instinct: meet people where they actually struggle.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I optimized onboarding for new hires across 3 global locations and helped run an Inclusive Leadership training program that scaled to 23 locations—so I know how to coordinate cohorts, calendars, and stakeholders across a distributed org. I'll be candid: I haven't carried an SDR quota myself. But the heart of this role—running onboarding cohorts, owning the enablement calendar, building playbook materials, and tracking ramp metrics—is exactly the work I've been doing.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC), which trained me to treat enablement as a system: I diagnose with data where new hires stall, collaborate cross-functionally on the fix, and track ramp metrics to make sure it holds. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, the chance to build the program that gets Brex's GTM hires productive faster is a genuine draw. I'd love to bring this methodology to your Enablement team.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
