Dear LangChain Hiring Team,

People Operations isn't just processing onboarding tickets—from my experience, it's about being the person who sees what needs to happen and handles it, then building the systems and documentation that let the whole function scale. With a background spanning People operations, HR, and organizational development, I'm excited to bring that high-ownership, build-don't-maintain approach to LangChain as your People Ops & Workplace Coordinator.

At InGenius Prep, I'm the person who keeps the engine running: I run onboarding logistics, system setup, and Day-1 readiness—work that helped reduce onboarding time by 75% across 70+ staff—and I maintain SOPs, process documentation, and our internal wiki in Notion so data stays clean and audit-ready. I'm also the kind of person who spots a repetitive workflow and fixes it: I identify manual tasks and apply AI tools to automate them, which is exactly the "be the person who builds the AI-assisted solution first" mindset this role asks for. I use AI daily and have been building a RAG-based system on the side.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I optimized onboarding for new hires across 3 global locations and delivered HR operations support across employee relations, headcount, and benefits-related coordination—and as someone navigating the H-1B process myself, I understand firsthand how much careful document collection and deadline tracking matters in immigration logistics. I'd handle that work with genuine care. I've also used Rippling and pick up new HRIS platforms quickly.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC), which trained me to treat operations as a system: I diagnose with data where a process breaks down, collaborate cross-functionally on the fix, and track results to make sure they hold. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, LangChain's mission to make intelligent agents ubiquitous—and the chance to use your own tooling to make my work smarter—are both genuine draws. I'd love to be the person who makes your office and People function run beautifully.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
