Dear Zip Hiring Team,

The best People Operations work is mostly invisible—the lifecycle programs that just run, the data that catches a problem early, the steady coordination that keeps people taken care of as a company scales. That's the work I love, and it's why this People Operations Program Manager role drew me in: the chance to own critical employee-lifecycle programs end-to-end in a fast-growing org.

At InGenius Prep, I manage the end-to-end lifecycle of 20+ programs and coordinate 10+ vendors, refining delivery and operations through feedback analysis, and I built guides and workflows for 70+ staff that cut onboarding time 75%. At Organization Development Network (ODN) Oregon, I bring an operational, data-grounded lens to people problems—analyzing 300+ leave cases to surface $362K in costs that drove policy redesigns. Earlier, at NextGen Healthcare, I analyzed 2,000+ employee experiences to guide C-suite decisions, and at Vestas I optimized onboarding across three locations and supported HR across headcount and succession planning.

What ties it together is a people-first, systems-minded approach grounded in my background in organizational psychology (MS, USC): I like turning ambiguous people needs into clear, well-run programs, using data to know whether they're working, and being the dependable owner who keeps things on track as the team grows. I'd be excited to bring that to Zip.

Warmly,

Jamie Cheng
