Dear PSU Hiring Team,

Strong training and development work is grounded in evidence and equity—understanding what people actually need, designing learning that's inclusive and accessible, and measuring whether it builds real capability. That's the work I love, and as a Portland resident, the chance to do it for PSU—a mission-driven public university in my own community—genuinely excites me.

Training and development have anchored my work. At InGenius Prep, I run needs assessments with 25+ stakeholders to identify learning gaps and design new training programs, facilitate training webinars for 600+ participants, and build guides and workflows for 70+ staff that cut onboarding time 75%. At NextGen Healthcare, I delivered internal training and consultations on DEI, Inclusive Leadership, and performance review, and analyzed 2,000+ employee experiences to guide leadership decisions. And at Vestas, I designed and piloted an Inclusive Leadership workshop that scaled from 12 leaders to 23 global locations—so building equity-centered learning that travels is exactly my wheelhouse.

What ties it together is a data-grounded, human-centered approach rooted in my background in organizational psychology (MS, USC) and education (BA, Wesleyan): I find what people need, design learning that's inclusive and sticks, and keep measuring impact. I'd be honored to bring that to PSU's training and employee development team.

Warmly,

Jamie Cheng
