Dear Hiring Team,

When someone reaches out with a benefits question or a worry about their unemployment claim, the answer they get—and how it makes them feel—shapes their whole sense of being supported at work. I love being the person who makes that moment go well, which is exactly why the Employee Experience Representative role at Xenium caught my eye. Being a warm, reliable first point of contact for the people behind a PEO's client companies is work I genuinely enjoy and am good at, and doing it right here in the Portland area makes it even better.

That instinct shows up across my background. At NextGen Healthcare I analyzed 2,000+ employee experiences to surface what actually drives satisfaction, so I understand how much weight every individual interaction carries. And at Kronos I engaged talent through personalized communication and genuine customer service, growing applications by 566% in two months—I've learned that responsiveness and a human tone are what turn a routine inquiry into a good experience.

I'm also a careful, organized list-checker who handles sensitive information the way people trust me to. At InGenius Prep I coordinate 20+ programs and 10+ vendors with meticulous tracking and built guides and workflows for 70+ staff that cut onboarding time by 75%. Through ODN Oregon I helped an HR team audit 300+ leave cases and turn them into executive-ready insights on $362K in leave costs—so I know firsthand how much good outcomes depend on accurate, well-kept data and clean records.

My background in organizational psychology means I approach this work like a scientist: listen closely, look at the evidence, and keep refining how we support people. I'd love to bring that mix of warmth, follow-through, and care to every employee who turns to Xenium for help.

Warmly,

Jamie Cheng
