Dear Kristin and the Goalbook Hiring Team,

Goalbook's mission—empowering teachers so that all students succeed—is the kind of work I'd be proud to support from the People side. My undergraduate degree is in Psychology and Education Studies, and my current role is at an education company, so a People team that designs its systems around teachers and students feels close to home. I'm a People professional with a master's in Applied Organizational Psychology, and the core of this role—partnering with managers, supporting employees through sensitive moments, and owning the follow-through on performance and engagement—maps closely to what I already do.

The HRBP side of my background is most direct from my time as an HR Business Partner Assistant at Vestas Wind Systems, where I assisted in employee relations cases, ensuring compliance with local labor laws and confidentiality, and partnered with the HRBP team to pilot an Inclusive Leadership workshop that scaled to 23 locations. At NextGen Healthcare, I led a manager-effectiveness initiative, turning feedback data into reports that coached leaders, and analyzed 2,000+ employee experiences to guide where the C-suite should focus. That's the same instinct behind the performance-and-engagement systems this role owns: surface patterns honestly, then make sure feedback leads to visible change.

Owning the follow-through is where I'm strongest. At InGenius Prep, I run end-to-end project management across 20+ initiatives, build SOPs and onboarding documentation for 70+ staff (cutting onboarding time by 75%), and facilitate listening sessions with 25+ stakeholders to turn what I hear into fairer, clearer processes. And in my ODN Oregon consulting, I diagnosed absenteeism by analyzing 300+ leave cases—surfacing $362K in costs that drove policy redesign. I'll be honest about one growth edge: I've supported employee-relations and leave work, but I haven't yet run US FMLA/ADA accommodation casework end-to-end—so I'd lean on the Head of People and HR Operations early while I build that depth, which is exactly how this role is structured.

What ties it together is how I work, grounded in organizational psychology: diagnose before designing, coach with both candor and care, and treat consistency and fairness as a system rather than a series of one-offs. I believe clarity is a form of care, and I'd welcome the chance to bring that to Goalbook.

Warmly,

Jamie Cheng
