Dear Faire Hiring Team,

HR Business Partnering isn't just about resolving individual people issues—from my experience, it's about using data and cross-functional collaboration to build the people infrastructure that lets teams perform their best. With a background spanning HRBP support, engagement analysis, and organizational development, I'm excited to bring that combination of analytical rigor and genuine people investment to Faire as an HRBP for Operations and Revenue.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I worked directly alongside the HRBP team, delivering strategic HR solutions across employee relations, headcount, and succession planning—learning firsthand how to balance legal compliance with business needs while building trust with leaders. I supported the design and launch of an Inclusive Leadership workshop for 12 senior leaders that was later scaled to 23 global locations, and helped drive engagement through initiatives recognized among 1,000+ competitors. That role gave me a clear sense of what it means to partner on people strategy at the business unit level, not just execute HR tasks.

At InGenius Prep, I applied those instincts to program operations—managing the full end-to-end lifecycle for 20+ projects, facilitating listening sessions with 25 global stakeholders to identify gaps, and building documentation for 70+ cross-functional staff that reduced onboarding time by 75%. While the context is program management rather than pure HR, the underlying skills are identical: synthesizing people feedback into action, coaching teams through process change, and keeping stakeholders aligned across functions.

At NextGen Healthcare, I led a manager effectiveness initiative that translated feedback data into executive-ready reports directly shaping engagement strategy, and elevated employee experience through 5 cross-functional projects covering survey development, rewards & recognition, and L&D. The analytical work at NextGen—analyzing 2,000+ employee experiences—reinforced my conviction that great HRBPs diagnose first with data, then partner on solutions that actually fit the business.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC)—which trained me to treat people challenges as systems: I diagnose with data, collaborate cross-functionally on solutions, and track metrics to ensure real progress. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, Faire's mission to empower independent retailers and the HRBP opportunity to support the teams making that happen are both genuine draws. I'd love to bring this methodology to your people team.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
