Dear Human Interest Hiring Team,

Recruiting and people operations isn't just about filling roles and keeping systems up to date—from my experience, it's about building the operational infrastructure that lets a team trust the process: clean data, consistent workflows, and a candidate and employee experience that reflects the company's values at every touchpoint. With a background spanning recruiting coordination, HR operations, and cross-functional program management, I'm excited to bring that operational mindset to Human Interest as a Recruiting & People Operations Associate.

At Kronos Research, I handled full-cycle recruiting logistics for an international team—drafting job descriptions, posting openings, researching global compensation benchmarks, and driving a 566% increase in applications in two months through personalized candidate outreach. I also organized campus recruiting events and moderated panels with C-suite executives at top universities. That early experience showed me how much recruiting quality depends on operational discipline and genuine care for every candidate interaction.

At InGenius Prep, I built the operational backbone for 20+ programs simultaneously—establishing cross-functional documentation for 70+ staff that reduced onboarding time by 75%, managing end-to-end program lifecycles with structured feedback loops, and facilitating listening sessions with 25+ global stakeholders to surface what was and wasn't working. The connective tissue of that role was exactly what people operations requires: organized, responsive, and constantly improving.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I supported the HRBP team across onboarding optimization, an M&A integration project, and an Inclusive Leadership pilot scaled to 23 global locations. I also strengthened employee experience through award-winning well-being initiatives. That work gave me a clear picture of how strong people operations underpins everything downstream—culture, retention, manager effectiveness.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC)—I diagnose process gaps with data, partner cross-functionally to redesign them, and track metrics to make sure the improvements hold. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, Human Interest's mission to give every American access to a dignified retirement—and the opportunity to build people operations that supports the team doing that work—are both meaningful draws. I'd love to contribute here.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
