Dear Mercy Corps Hiring Team,

Human resources coordination isn't just about processing paperwork—from my experience, it's about building the operational foundation that lets people do meaningful work, through accurate data, clear processes, and genuine care for every employee's experience. With a background spanning HR administration, organizational development, and program coordination, I'm excited to bring both operational rigor and a mission-driven mindset to Mercy Corps as an HR Coordinator on your People Team.

At Vestas Wind Systems, I supported an HRBP team across the full spectrum of HR operations—piloting an Inclusive Leadership workshop later scaled to 23 global locations, assisting in employee relations cases while ensuring compliance with local labor laws, and optimizing onboarding processes across 3 global locations through gap analysis and cross-functional coordination. That role taught me how to operate in a global, mission-driven environment where HR credibility is built one careful, well-documented interaction at a time.

At Kronos Research, I handled the full recruiting and HR administrative cycle for an international talent market—drafting job descriptions, managing candidate communications, maintaining HR records, and researching global compensation. I built a personalized outreach cadence that increased applications by 566% in two months and organized events that reached 230+ students. The administrative thoroughness and attention to detail I developed there are the foundation of how I approach HR coordination today.

At InGenius Prep, I managed 20+ programs and 10+ vendor partnerships simultaneously, building cross-functional documentation and workflows for 70+ staff that reduced onboarding time by 75%. I regularly synthesized feedback from 25+ stakeholders to inform program decisions and used data to track key operational metrics. The operational discipline of keeping multiple moving parts organized, accurate, and well-communicated is something I carry into every HR context.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC)—which trained me to treat HR challenges as systems: I diagnose with data, collaborate across functions on solutions, and track metrics to ensure real progress. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, Mercy Corps' mission to alleviate suffering and build more just communities and the opportunity to help the People Team create the operational foundation for that work—both draw me in deeply. I would love to bring this methodology to your team here in Portland.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
