Dear Portland State University Hiring Team,

Recruiting isn't just about filling seats—from my experience, it's about building candidate experiences that reflect an organization's values, driven by data, structured processes, and genuine cross-functional collaboration with hiring managers and departments. As a Portland-based HR professional with a background in full-cycle talent operations and a passion for inclusive, evidence-based people practices, I'm excited to bring that combination to PSU as a Recruiting Coordinator.

At Kronos Research, I stepped into a challenging international recruiting role—drafting job descriptions, posting openings, researching global compensation benchmarks, and engaging talent through personalized outreach that increased applications by 566% in two months. I also organized campus recruiting events and moderated panels with C-suite executives at top universities, reaching 230+ students and 80+ applicants. That experience gave me a strong foundation in full-cycle recruiting operations and the importance of candidate-centric communication throughout the hiring process.

At InGenius Prep, I managed the operational backbone for 20+ programs—establishing cross-functional processes and documentation for 70+ staff, facilitating listening sessions with global stakeholders to continuously improve program delivery, and coordinating high-volume logistics for training webinars reaching 600+ participants. The coordination muscles built there—tracking multiple cycles simultaneously, keeping stakeholders aligned, and refining processes based on feedback—map directly to the multi-search recruiting coordination PSU is looking for.

At Vestas Wind Systems and NextGen Healthcare, I worked alongside HRBP teams on projects spanning DEI, onboarding optimization, performance review, and employee engagement analysis. Building collaborative relationships with hiring managers and department leads, and ensuring processes served both operational compliance and a positive candidate experience, were central to everything I touched.

My approach is grounded in my MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC)—which trained me to treat recruitment as a system: diagnose gaps with data, design solutions collaboratively with stakeholders, and track metrics to confirm they're working. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, PSU's commitment to building a diverse university community and the opportunity to contribute to that through thoughtful, structured recruiting are both genuine draws. I'd welcome the chance to bring this approach to your team.

Sincerely,

Jamie Cheng
