Dear Valley Medical Center Hiring Team,

Organizational development isn't just about rolling out programs—from my experience, it's about a continuous cycle of collecting insights, analyzing data, and refining solutions through cross-functional collaboration. That belief is exactly why this Talent & Organizational Development Partner role drew me in: strengthening workforce effectiveness, engagement, and culture is work I approach as a system to be studied and improved, and I'd be glad to bring my background in organizational psychology and people programs to your team.

At Organization Development Network (ODN) Oregon, I work as an OD consultant diagnosing the kinds of organizational challenges this role centers on. On one engagement, I facilitated CEO and HR discovery interviews to diagnose absenteeism and engagement drivers, then upskilled the HR team to audit 300+ leave cases—surfacing executive-ready insights on $362K in costs that drove policy redesigns. On another, I ran focus groups and 1:1 interviews with an NGO leadership team and analyzed the qualitative data to surface decision-making and accountability gaps. This is organizational development and change grounded in evidence.

At NextGen Healthcare, I focused on the employee engagement and performance side of this work: I analyzed 2,000+ employee experiences to guide C-suite decisions, led a manager effectiveness initiative translating feedback into engagement strategies, and consulted on internal training in DEI, inclusive leadership, and performance review. As Program Enablement Manager at InGenius Prep, I partner with stakeholders to deliver onboarding and training initiatives for 70+ staff, facilitate needs assessments that produced three new learning programs, and run training sessions for 600+ participants—directly relevant to the onboarding, orientation, and leadership-development facilitation this role calls for.

This is how I approach work, uniquely grounded in my background in organizational psychology (MS, USC): I use data collection and analysis to diagnose where people and processes struggle, I use stakeholder collaboration to design solutions that fit the organization, and I keep using data to track the metrics that show whether they're working. As an analytical organizer with a growth mindset, I'm genuinely excited by Valley Medical Center's mission and by the chance to help build the engagement, performance, and leadership-development programs that make a workforce stronger.

Warmly,

Jamie Cheng
