Hiring Manager

HR Generalist work isn't just about processing transactions accurately—from my experience, it's about being the operational backbone employees actually trust: a help desk ticket resolved with real care, an onboarding orientation that makes someone feel genuinely welcomed, an HRIS record so clean it never surfaces as a compliance fire drill. That combination of precision and human touch is exactly what drew me to Aurora's HR Generalist role.

I applied to Aurora's Program Manager, People Team role three days ago and remain genuinely enthusiastic about the company. This HR Generalist opening caught my attention for a different reason: it's closer to the operational depth where I've done my best work. At Vestas Wind Systems, I supported the HRBP team on an M&A integration—migrating and merging employee records across systems while coordinating with cross-functional stakeholders to maintain data accuracy throughout a complex transition. I also streamlined onboarding across three global locations and assisted on employee relations cases with a compliance-first mindset. At InGenius Prep, I built the process infrastructure for 70+ cross-functional staff—documentation, workflows, and onboarding materials—cutting ramp-up time by 75% while keeping data consistent across platforms.

Workday is Aurora's system of record. I've worked at the user level in HRIS platforms including SAP and Greenhouse, and I learn transactional systems quickly; I'd come in ready to run Workday Help tickets and HRIS data changes from day one. My MS in Applied Organizational Psychology (USC, 3.95 GPA) sharpens the instinct for when a process is quietly breaking before it becomes an audit issue. I'm currently in Portland and fully open to relocating to Mountain View for this role. Thank you for considering my application—I'd love to talk about how I can help Aurora's People team keep operations running with confidence.

Sincerely,
